1

They will never be found.

2

They will escape the cave and will learn how to live in the forest.

3

They will escape the cave and be rescued by men on a river boat.

Injun Joe will catch them and hurt them.

In the middle of the night the village bells began to peal. In moments the streets were full of excited people, still wearing their pajamas.

“Turn out! Turn out! They’re found! They’re found!” People blew horns and banged on pots to add to the celebration.

What does the word “peal” mean?

The people made their way to the river, where they met Tom and Becky who were being brought in an open carriage.

Everyone was too excited to go back to sleep.

Where did the people go to meet Tom and Becky?

mountain peak

river

A messenger was sent to the cave to tell Judge Thatcher, that his daughter, Becky, had been found.

Mrs. Thatcher and Aunt Polly's happiness was complete.

How did Judge Thatcher find out that the Becky had been found?

messenger

phone call

Tom lay on the sofa and told the people around him about their wonderful adventure.

He exaggerated the story to make it seem even more exciting and finished with a description of how he had left Becky and went exploring as far as his kite string would reach.

What did Tom use to find his way through the cave?

flashlight

kite string

When Tom came to the end of the kite string, he had seen a far off speck of light ahead. He dropped the string and made his way to the light.

Tom found a hole and when he pushed his head outside he could see the Mississippi river.

What body of water did Tom see next to the cave?

Lake Erie

Mississippi River

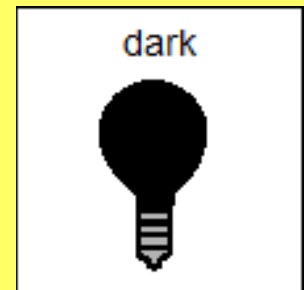

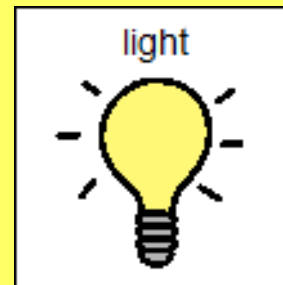

Tom felt lucky that he had explored during the day.

At night he would not have been able to see the light shining through the hole.

What would the hole have looked like at night?

Tom had to work very hard to help Becky to the hole in the cave.

Once she was out of the hole they were so happy that they cried for gladness.

Why did Tom and Becky cry?

they felt happy

they felt mad

Some men came along the river in a small boat called a skiff.

Tom called out to the men and told them their story about being lost in the cave.

Where did Tom and Becky find people to rescue them?

on a skiff

in a car

The men took the children aboard and brought them to a home where they fed them supper and made them rest.

After dark, they brought the children home.

What did Tom and Becky need before they could go home?

Before day break, Judge Thatcher and a handful of other searchers made their way out of the cave and heard the good news that the children had come home.

Where was Judge Thatcher when he heard that the children were safe?

cave

home

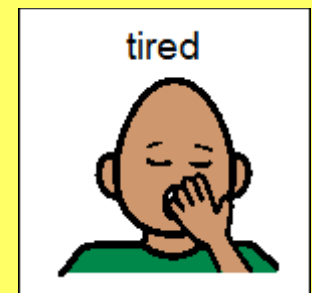

Tom and Becky were exhausted from their time in the cave, and were bedridden all of Wednesday and Thursday.

On Friday Tom began to feel better and on Saturday he was completely recovered.

Becky began to recover on Sunday, but still did not feel very well.

The children were safe, but how did they feel?

Judge Thatcher explained to Tom that no one could enter the cave again.

He had covered the door with a big piece of iron and had triple locked it with a set of keys.

Why had the Judge locked the cave?

he was mad

it was dangerous

Two weeks later, Tom wanted to go see his friend Huck. On his way, Tom stopped in at Judge Thatcher's house to check on Becky.

At their house, Tom was asked if he would ever go into the cave again.

Tom said yes, he would.

Was Tom scared by the idea of going back in the cave?

yes

no

Tom turned as white as a sheet. “Oh, Judge,” he cried, “Injun Joe’s in the cave!”

The Judge had sealed Injun Joe inside.

Why was Tom worried about Injun Joe?

he was locked
in the cave

he was locked
in the jail
