

The teacher placed objects into the “different” bowls and the student was shown (visually and tactilly) each item from each bowl, was told what they represented, and was asked if they were the same. The student smiled at the “same” question when she felt the rock (representing the cave) and was assisted to place it in the “same” bowl.

